I. Tufts University Libraries

A. Tufts Libraries Council (TLC)

Tufts libraries support the teaching, learning, research, and scholarship needs of students, faculty and staff at their respective schools; contribute to the stewardship of the scholarly record on behalf of members of the University community and beyond; and preserve the institutional records and scholarship of Tufts. The mission of the Tufts Libraries Council (TLC) is to strengthen the capacity of each library to meet the needs of the schools through collective planning and shared services, and to ensure that, as a collective, the libraries of Tufts University effectively meet institutional academic needs.

The TLC is the governing body for items that affect all Tufts Libraries in the following areas: librarian promotions, creation of and appointments to university-wide library committees, library automation and technology, membership in the Boston Library Consortium, collection management, and outside contracts. The TLC is composed of representatives from all the Tufts Libraries in addition to partners from Tufts Technology Services and the Provost Office and includes following:

- Ginn Library: Director and Associate Director
- Hirsh Library: Director and Associate Director
- Tisch Library: Director, Associate Director, Assistant Director for Technical Services, Head of the SMFA Library, and Head of Lilly Music Library
- Tufts Digital Collections and Archives: Director/University Archivist
- Tufts Technology Services: Director of Educational Technology Systems and Services and Director of Library Technology Services
- Provost Office: Vice/Associate Provost and Administrative Assistant (for administrative support)
- Webster Vet Library: Library Manager

B. Library Teams

The TLC convenes University-wide library teams. Teams select their team leaders. Library directors review the team memberships annually to ensure that their library has adequate representation. The current teams and their membership and charges are found on the Tufts Libraries LibStaff.

All teams are expected to post their minutes to the staff website as soon after the meetings as possible.

II. Professional Development

All librarians at Tufts are encouraged and expected to participate in professional activities to continue their own development, to advance the profession, and to enhance service to the library.
The Tufts libraries support their librarians in these activities in several ways. Release time and library-supported travel may be requested. The director of an individual's library will grant requests depending on the budget and staff priorities.

Supervisors and colleagues are encouraged to mentor librarians in professional development by sharing their knowledge of professional activities and other development opportunities.

A. Association Activities

Each individual library will establish a process to approve all arrangements for released time and financial support for librarians attending local, regional and national conferences.

B. Research

The libraries recognize the importance of research contributions as a means of advancement and a condition of advancement to the highest rank. This work may take place as an adjunct to, or as part of, librarians’ regular professional tasks.

In all cases, librarians contemplating a research project for which some form of institutional support of either time or money may be needed should discuss the project in advance with their supervisor and their director.

C. Continuing Education

Participation in continuing education, both formal and informal, is expected of all Tufts librarians.

Tufts University offers tuition remission or reimbursement under certain circumstances. Refer to the Tufts University Employee Handbook for details.

Staff development programs may be conducted throughout the year within the university library system and the BLC. Human Resources and Tufts Technology Services offer programs designed to enhance work-related skills. All staff members are encouraged to participate, with their supervisor's approval.

Librarians may attend specific workshops, webinars, seminars or institutes with the permission of their supervisor and/or their director.

Involvement in university life also offers opportunities for librarians to grow and contribute as academic professionals. Academically sponsored educational and cultural events on campus and the work of committees, organizations and other university groups can open avenues leading to university service.

III. Appointments and Promotion

A. Ranks

1. Rationale for Ranking
In an academic institution, librarians contribute to the academic and scholarly needs of the internal and external community. Ranking rewards such contributions by providing official recognition of the knowledge and experience brought to the position by an individual and acknowledges on-the-job progress and excellence in performance. It serves as an internal mechanism, defined by Tufts University Libraries, for recognizing professional development in terms of service to the University and to the profession.

2. Definition of Ranks

All librarians except directors shall be appointed to one of the ranks described below. Job titles and responsibilities, as determined by the home library and Human Resources, are independent of rank.

AFFILIATE: This entry level rank is assigned to an individual with a master's degree in library science or its equivalent and with less than 2 years professional experience.

ASSISTANT: An individual with a master's degree in library science qualifies for this rank after a minimum of 2 years as an affiliate at Tufts OR 2 years professional experience, and demonstration of strong job performance and participation in professional activities.

ASSOCIATE: This third level is a senior rank. An individual with a master's degree in library science qualifies for this rank after a minimum of 3 years as Assistant at Tufts OR at least 5 years of professional experience, and demonstration of excellent job performance, contributions to the profession and service to the Tufts' libraries and the university community.

LIBRARIAN: This is the highest rank within the system. An individual with a master’s degree in library science qualifies for this rank after a minimum of 6 years as Associate at Tufts OR a minimum of 11 years of professional experience, and must demonstrate consistent outstanding achievements in job performance, in contributions to the profession and in service to the Tufts’ libraries and the university community. This is a rank of special distinction that recognizes significant career achievement and contribution to the library profession.

"Years" shall be defined as years working in a professional capacity for 17.5 or more hours per week, or that equivalency, at Tufts or elsewhere. Applicants for promotion must have achieved the required number of years by June 30 of a given year to be eligible for that year's promotions process.

B. Promotions

1. The Promotions Team

The Promotions Team is responsible for recommending librarians for promotion. The team consists of three members and an alternate. The alternate may serve in any case of conflict of interest, such as a direct supervising relationship, or if a member of the team feels that s/he cannot be fair and objective. If there is a candidate for promotion to the rank of Librarian and there is not a member of the Promotions Team with that rank, the Team will seek a member of that rank to join the team for review of the candidate applying for rank of Librarian.
The team shall be comprised of at least one member each from Tisch Library and the Hirsh Health Sciences Library, and as available a member from the Ginn Library, Webster Veterinary Library, or LTS. Terms shall be for two years. At least two new members, or one member and the alternate, shall be added each year. If there is an appeal process, a representative of the Human Resources Department serves as an ad hoc member of the team.

The primary responsibility of the Promotions Team is to assess colleagues' contributions to the Library, the University, and the profession of librarianship. The Promotions Team does not make recommendations for salary increases, as responsibility for determining salary changes due to promotion sits with individual library directors.

2. Criteria for Promotion

   a. Librarianship

   Academic librarians further the University goals and participate in educational and research programs at Tufts by understanding the research and learning needs of the Tufts community. They provide students with the knowledge and skills for them to grow as intellectually curious and critically involved members of society and support and partner with faculty in their research and teaching. Librarians collaborate with colleagues and peers within Tufts Libraries, the university, and at other institutions to provide high quality resources and services to users, and assess and respond to users' changing needs by realigning services to better meet those needs.

   Librarianship encompasses a broad and expanding set of roles and responsibilities in support of: research and learning, enabling the discovery, creation, and sharing of knowledge and information, and contributing to the stewardship of the scholarly record. It is manifest in the creation of new tools, services, workflows, and pedagogies to further these aims.

   To continually grow their skills and expertise, librarians also participate in professional development and continuing education activities.

   b. Service

   Service is involvement in the Tufts libraries, and professional, university, and community activities related to the mission and goals of Tufts University, its libraries and the library profession. It is the responsibility of Tufts University libraries to provide time and financial support for librarians to engage in professional service outside of the libraries.

   c. Scholarship

   Scholarship in librarianship expands the knowledge bases of library and information science. Relevant subject area research contributes to the knowledge base of University programs. Forms of scholarship listed below are neither exhaustive nor meant to be prescriptive. Librarians should also include other examples of relevant, impactful professional scholarship in their application.
Examples of scholarship include, but are not limited to:

- Publishing articles, books, and book chapters in the professional literature
- Presenting papers, talks, and posters at professional conferences
- Contributing to professional networks, including blogs, discussion lists, and social media & networking sites
- Sharing code
- Contributing to regional & national-scale documentation and white papers
- Sharing educational and pedagogical materials, including lesson plans, course materials, and programming
- Contributing to digital scholarship projects, websites, information portals, or building digital tools
- Curating exhibits (physical or digital)
- Performing peer review
- Serving on an editorial board
- Participating in grant-related activity

3. Requirements by Rank

The Promotions Team recognizes that activities and contributions in librarianship, service, and scholarship will vary by position, and opportunities to be active in a given area may change at times during a librarian’s career. These requirements are meant to be broad and flexible in order to accommodate and recognize the experience of different positions and career paths, and to encompass a range of professional activities and contributions.

4. Promotion Procedure and Documentation

Promotion signifies recognition of a librarian’s accomplishments and professional growth by their peers. Promotion usually results in a salary increase, but this is not guaranteed and is determined by individual library directors based on the available budget in a given year. Participation in the promotion system is voluntary and the librarian may decline or defer consideration for promotion.

The candidate for promotion should provide the team with evidence of activities and contributions to the profession which are appropriate to the rank sought. The material provided should indicate productivity and engagement in the field. The activities and contributions will be reviewed in terms of quality or excellence, and in terms of their impact. At the higher ranks, the Promotions Team looks for evidence of sustained productivity and independent thought especially in regard to professional association activity and scholarship. Innovation and originality of contributions are valued in all categories of assessment.

a. Confidentiality, Fairness, Objectivity, and Non-Discrimination

The Promotions Team has an obligation to maintain absolute fairness, impartiality, and open-mindedness in deliberations and recommendations. Peer reviews shall be based on an objective appraisal of submitted documentation. Documentation is expected to provide sufficient detail to make a fair and objective appraisal possible. Applications for promotion will be assessed in adherence to Tufts Non-Discrimination policy. If issues of accuracy or sufficiency of documentation arise, the team may ask candidates for additional information.
